Hello,

I am a victim of crime because of living in [REDACTED] Housing in [REDACTED] NSW.

There must be changes introduced to ensure safety of average community or public housing renter. This is because in the estate I lived there were criminals doing ongoing break ins day and night, unbelievably brazen, even when I was at home but asleep. There should be monitoring working in the common areas looking to units doors and windows and balconies. I know there are privacy laws but safety and security takes priority and someone's life and remaining unharmed should override privacy laws. Also, new tenants before deciding whether to move should be informed if there are any other residents there with negative criminal history. If this was the case I would never become victim of crime, horribly traumatised for life and almost homeless now. And every unit in community or public housing estate should have a deadlock installed.

Regards,-
